BCCCS Congratulates John Conroy and the Coalition Against Repeal

The BC Compassion Club Society (BCCCS) was pleased to hear of the Federal Court decision today that protects the rights of those with personal licenses to continue growing medical cannabis. We do hope that future decisions will allow all patients to grow their own medicine, and that the findings of unconstitutionality on restrictions to dried cannabis only will be upheld. View the decision here. Media contact: Isaac Oommen... [\[...More\]](#)

BCCCS Response to the MMPR \(2013\)

From the Executive Summary: The British Columbia Compassion Club Society (BCCCS) is one of the oldest medical cannabis dispensaries in North America. Founded in 1997, we have been at the fore-front of the medical cannabis movement for 15 years and have extensive experience caring for patients whose symptoms can be alleviated by cannabis. After examining the most recent proposal for a federal medical cannabis scheme, we have identified four key recommendations that would vastly improve the effectiveness of the program.... BCCCS Board Member Featured in Vancouver Sun

The BCCCS is very proud that long-time member and current Director on our board, Dwight Villeneuve, has been featured in the Vancouver Sun in both print and video. Dwight shared his story with the Sun of overcoming many significant challenges to come to a place of providing help to others through his participation with the BCCCS. His story was also broadcast on CHEK-TV locally as well as other regional television stations. Congratulations Dwight!... [\[...More\]](#)
